

We are opposed to consolidation but feel that the least the FCC can do is delay tomorrow's vote so that more people can have an opportunity to voice an opinion regarding this matter. We are distressed that Chairman Powell has expressed such indifference to the opinions voiced by the public. His manner suggests that he believes that the FCC is his private domain and we are concerned that this notion compromises his sense of responsibility to the national community.